StudioPDP

Studio PDP are an architecture, urban and interior design practice with an international portfolio and offices in London and Bath, and a buyer of Retrofit Credits.

Their participation in the Retrofit Credits programme has delivered 22 tonnes of carbon reduction and generated £12,614 in social value, as measured by the UK Social Value Bank.

We spoke to Federica Romeo Beattie, the Studio's Head of Sustainability, about their experience with the Retrofit Credits initiative.

TELL US ABOUT YOUR RETROFIT CREDITS JOURNEY.

Every year, we look to reduce our carbon footprint and find the best options to offset the remainder. For the 2024/2025 financial year, we achieved a great reduction from previous years, with a total of 21.23 tCO2e.

During our research, we discovered HACT's Retrofit Credits and were impressed by how closely the organisation aligns with our work and values, retrofitting social housing to improve residents' quality of life while reducing carbon emissions.

HOW HELPFUL HAS RETROFIT CREDITS BEEN IN YOUR SOCIAL VALUE AND DECARBONISATION WORK?

Retrofit Credits represents the beginning of our social value work. We know the social value within the projects we work on, like work schemes, but we also work on social value within our company itself, through apprenticeships and working with different charities.

To be able to have this double value, offsetting carbon and investing in social value, is definitely a benefit.

WOULD YOU RECOMMEND THE RETROFIT CREDITS PROGRAMME TO OTHER ORGANISATIONS?

I would recommend it.

We know that retrofitting the huge amount of housing stock in the UK needs to be done by 2050, and we need to speed that up by investing in more retrofitting at every level, and every type of building.

It's a unique way to reinvest into retrofit.
